Imagine an island in planted the North Atlantic Ocean, 900 km from mainland Portugal and about 600 km off the coast of Morocco. An island where the mountain sometimes embraces the clear blue sea, an island where a multitude of waterfalls sing to trails and paths. Here there are no less than 1,500 km of levadas (irrigation channels) that mark a cultural heritage built with Herculean effort by generations. Madeira is also endemic preserved forest Laurissilva, a World Natural Heritage by UNESCO.

Madeira is a land of beauty with countless charms and unique challenges.

Miut - Madeira Island Ultra Trail®, 7th edition promises an exciting challenge, across the island from sea to sea, in a north-south direction, from Porto Moniz, at sea level, with passages from the highest points of the island (1,750m to the highest point) and then back down to the deep blue sea in Machico.
